Figuring out life one educated guess at a time

Quick check-in update from hospital (SRS -12 hours from now!)

It's been an interesting day. Another day of crappy sleep. Oh well. Had breakfast again. This time my partner and I took off soon-ish so we could go walk for a bit. Ended up walking about an hour or so through Chon Buri. I took a quick nap after. Oh and we tripped the hotel breaker when we tried to use my straightener lol.

So anyways, got to the hospital and they did another basic body vitals thing. Ordered lunch for after I got back from the clinic for pre surgery with Dr. Suporn. Before heading over I talked to the anesthesiologist. Nothing crazy just asked basic medical history stuff. After that we left for the clinic. Here I got hit with a lot of information really quick.

Signed paperwork. Was read through the first part of the instruction book for "how to have a pussy 101." Signed my name some more, then went into the exam room. Dr Suporn took a look, explained by using my stuff how an inversion technique would work. Then we sat down, went through his slide deck of his technique, and what I can expect given my state of affairs down there. Since I was snipped as a baby, I'll likely have a smaller minora and the pink inside will also be smaller. But hey, cute little pussy is what that says to me!

We then got back to the hospital where we were dropped off. From there I met with the psychologist, I'll do another quick pay about that later, and has blood pressure checked throughout the night. Food was here when we got back. From there just hung out. We got coffee and did work. And talked.

Then about 8 the enema-ologist stopped by. I've done these to myself before so knew what to expect. She threw some lube on, and went right in. I had slid the curtain a bit so I could look at my gf while it happened (you know... Bonding and stuff). Unfortunately we got into a laughing bout and things started leaking out. The nurse wasn't thrilled. She had me go to the bathroom then we did it a second time minus the laughing. It's not bad imo, just interesting. And so. Much. Fluid.

After that just went back to things with the gf. About 10 a nurse came by and said "sleep now". Unfortunately this caused me to go into a tail spin emotionally. I was enjoying just being awake, talking, and the calm before the you have a new pussy to take care of storm tomorrow. After some lovely and intense crying, thank you to the gf for being there btw, I went to sleep for a bit.

Then as with the past few nights, I woke up at 3 am. Now as I type this though, I'm more at peace with things than I've been since I landed. I'm just calm and relaxed. At least comparatively.

T-minus 3 hours though now!
