

The Living Experiment

Figuring out life one educated guess at a time

Oh walking how I've missed you (SRS +5)

After yesterday and removing the outer bandages I've started to feel pretty good. Well minus the sore and swollen pussy that doesn't look that cute right now. But at least I can walk. Supposedly only with help. Me, being my stubborn self, said screw it and walked alone a few times after the shower walk with nurses.

Otherwise, just another day in the hospital. I really don't like their food. It's so boring. Really nothing much new. I'll take daily pics to post in a larger thread of the healing process, but for now this is it for the day.

I get out of the hospital tomorrow. At 6 am a nurse comes to crimp off the catheter. I'll need to drink as much as I can tomorrow morning along with coffee. At 7 the catheter comes out and I need to pee on my own. Or I get it reinserted for a few more days which would be miserable.

Oh one weird thing... went #2 for the first time last night... sat down, and instinctively shoved my right hand down to make sure my parts didn't touch the bowl. Then it hit me... I don't have parts that will have that happen.

Oh and the nurse betadine and post-shower stuff. Holy fuck sensitive. Sex is looking to be promising lol.

Every little twinge of pain reminds me that nerves are reconnecting and is a good thing. I'm glad you obviously have great sensation already showing, and bodily functions returning to normal. And as to your feelings that you described (in previous post)... I know, right? So happy for you sister. 😊
